

Dog Nail

This image shows two black-finished dog nails made of metal. Dog nails are commonly used in railway tracks, timber fastening, construction, and industrial applications where strong holding power is required. The nails feature a pointed tip for easy penetration and a forged head for secure fastening. The surface appears polished with a protective black coating for durability and corrosion resistance.

