

Two Way Key

The image shows a two-way key manufactured from mild steel. It is used as a mechanical locking and positioning component in railway, construction, and industrial assemblies. The component features a durable metallic body with a precision profile, providing secure fitting and reliable performance. It is suitable for heavy-duty applications and can be supplied with protective finishes for improved corrosion resistance.

