Spools

THE ADVANTAGES :

We are using Caprolectum catalyst as a Raw material for our spools. Our Spools are manufactured by centrifugal system wherein the polymerization takes place in the molten stage. Due to direct polymerization our spools retain its stability even after long life period.

Comparision of CC spools with hylam, Nylon and paper steel spools

- ? CC Spools have higher tensile strength and better resilience than other spools due to which it doesn't brake under impact during disc locking.
- ? The vents are provided for release of air packet formed during lap winding
- ? High precession jigs are used for balancing thereby improving the life of spools
- ? CC has high molecular weight making the spool inherently stable
- ? Other features like good toughness, self lubrication and wear resistance enable CC spools to give two to three times more life than hylam and other

Properties

Melting Temperature	215°C
Density	14 g/cm ³
Tensile Strength at yield	750 Kg/cm ²
Elongation at yield	9% - 12 %
E-modulus	24000 Kg/cm ²
Hardness Rockwell @23oC	R 112
Notched impact strength at 20oC	2.9 ft lb/in

Properties

Co efficient of friction

No lubrication 0.30 - 0.40

Initial lubrication 0.05 - 0.10

Co efficient of thermal expansion

ASTM D696 100 - 130

Dielectric strength

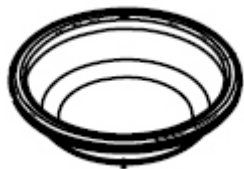

ASTM D149 400 V/mil

Top Rollers

THE ADVANTAGES :

- | | |
|----------------------|---------------------------|
| Precise geometry | Resist bending & breaking |
| Assured quality | High productivity |
| High wear resistance | Last longer |

Scope of Supply

Individual components :

- ? End Bush
- ? Shell
- ? Cots

Complete Assembly :

- ? Top Roller Complete

Consists of

- End Bush
- Shell
- Cots (Accotex or Berkol)

Recognizing fundamental requirements, the Shell is made out of Alloy Steel which consists of high Chrome and medium Carbon. The End Bush is made out of Alloy Steel with medium Carbon. Heat treatment process is adopted on the Shell and End Bush, for having high wear resistance at frictional area (where bearing comes in contact) of the Shell and clamping / seating portion of the End Bush. By maintaining Precise Geometry on the Shell and End Bush the fitment of the Roller assembly on the machine frame is perfect. By using qualitative inputs like reputed make Bearings, Rubber seals and reputed make Cots, the reliability of the Rollers are at optimum level.
