

Industrial Gas Cylinder

This image shows an industrial gas cylinder equipped with a valve and pressure gauge for the safe storage and delivery of compressed gases. Such cylinders are commonly used for oxygen, nitrogen, argon, carbon dioxide, and other industrial gases in manufacturing, laboratories, healthcare, welding, chemical processing, and research applications. Built from high-strength steel, they are designed for durability, high-pressure performance, and safe handling.